Priya Singh

Executive Vice President, Chief Strategy Officer, and Senior Associate Dean
Stanford Medicine

Priya Singh joined Stanford Medicine in 2013 and currently serves as the executive vice president, chief strategy officer, and senior associate dean. In these roles, she oversees enterprise strategy and leads strategic planning, global strategy, industry relations, and public relations/ communications for Stanford Health Care, Stanford Medicine Children's Health, and the School of Medicine.

Singh led Stanford Medicine's first integrated strategic plan, aligning the research, education, and clinical care missions for each of the organization's three entities and highlighting its revolutionary vision on precision health. Previously, she was assistant dean for the Stanford Graduate School of Business, where she was responsible for executive education and global innovation programs. Before coming to Stanford University, Singh held leadership roles at Oracle, Respond.com, and Levi Strauss & Co.

Singh has been recognized by Becker's Hospital Review, named to Fortune's list of Most Powerful Women, and named as one of Silicon Valley Business Journal's Women of Influence. She also mentors early-career women leaders.

Before moving to the United States, Singh earned her master's and bachelor's degrees in business management from the University of Bombay, India. She enjoys cooking, cricket, and time with the family, especially her Bernedoodle, Enzo.
