Managing Pain When Living With Cancer

Tuesday, September 22nd: 12pm-1pm PST

*Live interpretation in Mandarin and Spanish available!*

Pain can worsen the quality of life for many people living with cancer. Fortunately, there are many treatments that can help manage and reduce pain.

In this event, Stanford palliative care doctor Grant Smith, MD will highlight ways to treat pain by considering the physical, psychological, and spiritual contributors to pain.

We will discuss how to lessen pain using medicine, as well as other treatments. We will also discuss which medical teams can help treat your pain, and when to ask your doctor for a referral to these teams.
